What is a cookie?

Cookies are small files containing letters and numbers, punctuation and other technical characters that are stored on your device (computer, mobile phone, tablet, smart TV, etc.) when you visit certain websites. They are IT data that are sent by the web server to the user's browser, stored on the user's device and returned by the browser to the server each time a request is sent to it. They do not contain executable files, viruses or spyware and do not access the user's hard disk.

Cookies usually contain the domain name to which they apply, the storage period and the value stored. Among other things, they allow the user's device and browser to be recognised, so that they can be used to display content tailored to the visitor's needs and to facilitate basic browsing functions, such as providing coherent sessions. In addition to user anonymity, they also support the generation of visitor statistics.

We do not store any personally identifiable information in cookies, but we do use encrypted information from cookies to enhance the user experience. For example, it helps us to identify and resolve bugs or to identify interesting related products that we would like to draw your attention to when you browse our website.

Cookies that are strictly necessary for the functioning of the website and cookies that support anonymous visitor statistics are loaded during the first visit. This is beyond the user's control.

Cookies used to enhance the user experience and for marketing purposes will only be loaded after consent has been given in the cookie notification "box". This consent can be withdrawn at any time by using the link in the browser or website footer, or by deleting the "cookieconsent_status".

However, if you subsequently contact us via a form - with your explicit consent - on one of our websites where we use cookies, we may be able to learn about your website visits after you have prevented the form from being filled out by using these cookies. This is done in order to enhance user experience.

If you have accepted the cookie notice on our websites, the notice will not reappear until you clear the "cookieconsent_status" cookie by using the browser or the link in the footer of the website.

If you decide to restrict, block or delete cookies used by a website, you can do so using your browser. As each browser is different, you should refer to the Help/Support section of the program you are using (or the user manual of your mobile phone) to change the settings for cookies.

4. Exercising Data Subject rights

If the data subject has made a request to the controller in relation to the exercise of his or her rights as described in point 3, the controller shall respond without undue delay, but no later than one month from the receipt of the request, and inform the data subject of the action taken on the request. If necessary, this period may be extended by a further two months.

If the controller does not act on the data subject's request, the controller shall inform the data subject without delay and at the latest within one month of receipt of the request of the reasons for the failure to act and of the possibility for the data subject to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority and to exercise his or her right of judicial remedy.

5. How to lodge a complaint

The data subject has the right to lodge a complaint with the data protection authority:

Name	The Hungarian National Authority for Data Protection and Freedom of Information (NAIH)
Headquarters	1055 Budapest, Falk Miksa street 9-11.
Postal address	1363 Budapest, Pf.9.
Email	ugyfelszolgalat@naih.hu
Phone	+36 (1) 391-1400
Fax	+36 (1) 391-1410
Website	http://naih.hu

6. Judicial remedies

The provisions on judicial remedies are contained in Act CXII of 2011 on the Right to Informational Self-Determination and Freedom of Information.

The data subject may take legal action against the controller to protect his or her data if he or she considers that the controller has breached the rules on the processing of personal data. The lawsuit may be brought, at the choice of the data subject, before the competent court in the place where he or she resides or is domiciled. A person who does not otherwise have legal capacity may also be a party to the action. The data protection authority (DPA) may intervene in the lawsuit to protect the interests of the data subject.

Any person who has suffered pecuniary or non-pecuniary damage as a result of a breach of the General Data Protection Regulation shall be entitled to receive compensation from the controller or processor for the damage suffered. The controller or processor shall be exempt from liability if they prove that they are not in any way responsible for the event giving rise to the damage.
